Prospects for Federal Relief Measures Perish in Senate

DEFEAT IN SENATE KILLS EFFORTS FOR DIRECT FEDERAL AID

LAFOLLETTE-COSTIGAN BILL DEFEATED IN SENATE BY 48 TO 35 VOTE

Washington, Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—Prospects for federal aid to the destitute perished last night in the senate. The $750,000,000 LaFollette-Costigan bill was defeated, 48 to 35.

May Revive Bills

Congressional leaders are agreed that means the end, for the present, of direct federal aid measures. They may be revived later if state and municipal relief conditions change materially.

For the present there is no likelihood of any kind of federal aid. The LaFollette bill carried to defeat with a proposal for increased highway allocations to the states. Other plans to stimulate the federal building program were defeated as amendments during final consideration.

The action, therefore, swept the counter clean of most of the various proposals for direct federal relief advanced since congress met in December.

Closeness of the vote showed the senate might easily reverse itself if there is any material change in the situation outside. Only seven votes would have to be switched. It also is probably some of the other proposals would have received a much larger vote had they been offered as separate propositions.

Some Favorable

A substantial majority of the senate appeared to be in favor of some sort of relief, but the majority could not be held in favor of any specific proposition.

The decision was regarded as a distinct victory for President Hoover. While he made no public statement concerning the bill, republican leaders generally thought he would veto it. All regular republican leaders opposed it. The democrats split, 19 voting for it, and 21 against.

BRIGHT SUN BRINGS BREAK IN COLD SNAP

Increasing cloudiness and warmer weather will bring relief to Minnesota and the Northwest tomorrow from a sub-zero cold wave that followed on the heels of a snow storm.

Highway crews labored to clear blocked highways in several parts of the state as the result of a blizzard last night which brought five inches of snow to all but the northern part of the state.

Temperatures ranged from four below in Moorhead to 4 above in St. Paul. Dakota temperatures were below zero. Devils Lake, N. D., reported 12 below.

Buses were running late during the storm throughout southern Minnesota. Two airplanes bound for Chicago were forced down by the storm, one landing at Rochester and the other at Winona.

GREAT BARGAIN FESTIVAL PRESAGED BY 'DOLLAR DAYS' NEXT THURSDAY, FRIDAY

Your dollars will do double-duty next Thursday and Friday, February 25th and 26th.

Values that cannot fail to "coax dollars out of hiding," to use the theme of President Hoover's anti-hoarding campaign, will be offered by Brainerd merchants in a great bargain holiday dedicated as "Dollar Days."

Extra special values will not only be confined to the dollar but corresponding price reductions will prevail throughout the two days of the shopping festival, according to merchants who are now going over their stocks and preparing new shipments of goods for the inspection and purchase by their patrons.

It will be a gala sales event. Windows will be dressed to accentuate the bargains with the "dollar day" motif emphasizing the flexibility of your dollars.

"Double-duty" dollars will flow and it will not be a case of enticing out of hiding, the merchants declare, as unheard of bargains will be offered in practical and essential necessities of living that will defy passing up.

Fostered and conceived in the hope of stimulating trade, simultaneously giving their patrons the benefit of drastic reductions and unusual values, "Dollar Days" presages to be one of the outstanding selling events of the buying season.

Before Storm Broke Over Senate Hearing

Calm before the storm, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley (standing, in center) and members of the Senate Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs are pictured here as they posed at the national capitol. The peaceful scene was broken when Secretary Hurley and Senators Harry B. Hawes of Missouri and William H. King of Utah engaged in bitter controversy over the former's denunciation of bills providing for early Philippine independence. Left to right, seated, are Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, King, and Edward S. Brousard of Louisiana. Standing, at left, is Senator Sergio Osmena, acting President of the Philippine Senate, and at right, Manuel Roxas, Speaker of the House of the Philippine legislature.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT IS 16,000 GIVEN WORK FEARED AS SHERIFF IN 66 COMMUNITIES; FAILS TO ESCAPE JOBLESS MOVE OPENS

INDIANA OFFICER HELD FOR AIDING ROBBERIES PLACED UNDER GUARD IN JAIL

Portland, Ind., Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—Special deputies guarded former sheriff Ira Barton of Blackford county against suicide today after his amazing escape attempt ended, county officers announced, in a written confession of aiding to rob banks he had sworn to protect.

Barton is on trial here charged with conspiring with Chicago Heights, Ill., gang to raid banks in this territory. Officials said the confession was made a few hours after he blackjacked a deputy unconscious and broke for freedom amid whizzing bullets.

Wielding a blackjack smuggled to him in the courtroom by his nephew, he said, Barton attacked Deputy Sheriff Andy Ferguson as he was being led back to jail from a conference in his attorneys' office.

As Ferguson fell to the ground unconscious, Barton darted down an alley. A state police officer saw him run and fired after the fleeing figure but missed. The former sheriff dodged into a grain bin at an elevator where a posse captured him.

He was placed under constant surveillance at the jail as authorities feared a desperate suicide attempt.

WISCONSIN ASSUMES LEAD IN DRIVE TO ALLEVIATE UNEMPLOYMENT

New York, Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—The opening day of a national effort to send unemployed men back to work, as reported by the united action group for employment today, gave 16,867 men in 66 American communities jobs.

Reports from 29 states were still being received at the New York headquarters of the group today. The American Legion, the A. F. of L., the Association of National Advertisers, and the Legion Auxiliary are combining in the campaign.

Wisconsin leads the states with 4,457 wage earners employed in 10 communities, according to the report. In the city of Appleton alone, 44 employers gave work to 3,600 men, guaranteeing their jobs through June.

FLAYS ROOSEVELT'S DESERTION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

WILSON'S SECRETARY DECLARES LEAGUE EXACTLY AS CONCEIVED BY WAR-TIME PRESIDENT

Newark, N. J., Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's recent desertion of the League of Nations cause "because it was not the League conceived by Woodrow Wilson" was bitterly attacked today by Joseph P. Tumulty, eight years Wilson's White House secretary.

Tumulty did not mention the New York governor by name, but the inference was direct.

"The League of Nations," he said, "is exactly the League of Nations as conceived by Woodrow Wilson. If it does not function more properly and more effectively it does not behoove its recent friends to criticize its failure to function."

Some believed that Tumulty's speech was directed at both Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker, who is considered by many as a passive candidate for the democratic nomination. Baker has announced that he would not advocate American membership in the League until public opinion was predominantly in favor of such membership. Tumulty's reference to "those who have recently come forward in behalf of their own candidacy to express their views on domestic and foreign policies" was seen by some as designed to refer to both Roosevelt and Baker though Baker has said he is not a candidate.

Bjornson also outlined other tax reforms which he said were necessary, including the enactment of a state income tax. J. S. Jones, Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation will speak at the meeting late today on the income tax.

URGES ELIMINATION OVERLAPPING UNITS IN ECONOMY PLAN

PRESIDENT LAYS PROGRAM BEFORE CONGRESS IN SPECIAL MESSAGE TODAY

Washington, Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—President Hoover today asked congress for authority to effect a complete reorganization of the executive branch of the government.

In a special message, the president said the rapid growth of bureaus and commissions was costing the people millions of dollars a year. He charged that scores of these units overlapped. He said these "separate units," once created, sought to keep going after their jobs were completed.

Will Consolidate Bureaus

He admitted the amount of money to be saved was "difficult to estimate," but insisted it would total millions of dollars a year. He said the government could and should be made more efficient, and to this end recommended:

1.—"Consolidation and grouping of the various executive and administrative activities under single-headed responsibility."

2.—"Adoption of the general principle that executive and administrative functions should have single-headed responsibility and that advisory, regulatory and quasi-judicial functions should be performed by boards and commissions."

While proposing elimination of many minor offices, the president suggested creation of several new major posts which he said would fill the need for "definite and concentrated responsibility to the public." Among them were:

Assistant secretary for public health (new).

Assistant secretary for education (change from commissioner).

The establishment of an assistant secretary for merchant marine would enable the consummation of the proposals in my message of Dec. 8 in respect to the shipping board.

Assistant secretary for conservation (new).

Assistant secretary for agricultural research (change from present assistant secretary).

Assistant secretary for agricultural economics (change from director).

Public works administrator (new). It should also be partially an agency administering certain contract work which can not be delegated to any one department.

Personnel administrator (change from chairman of civil service commission).

Appointment of an administrator for public works, was defined as "partially a service agency to the other department of the government," he said, however, that naval, military and some other highly specialized construction should not be transferred to this agency.

He recommended that the civil service commission "be maintained as an advisory body to the personnel administrator," but many of its other functions "should be transferred to the personnel administration."

It is pointed out that similar suggestions had been made by every president since Taft. The measure essentially is one of economy, it was asserted, and the president was represented as feeling that action was long overdue. Mr. Hoover, it was recalled, has been advocating such a reorganization for the past six or seven years.

SAYS FARMER-LABOR HEADS PURPOSELY DISTORTED FACTS

TREASURER HURLS CHARGE AT OFFICIALS IN GRASSHOPPER APPROPRIATION

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—State Treasurer Julius Schmah today charged that Farmer-Labor state officials "purposely misrepresented facts" about the emergency appropriation last summer for fighting grasshoppers.

Schmah took exception to a statement in a recent "farm and market" letter issued over State Commissioner of Agriculture R. A. Trovatten's signature to the press of the state. The statement said "an emergency appropriation, granted by Governor Olson from the state calamity fund, was expended in the afflicted area."

Schmah pointed out that the appropriations were granted by the state executive council, which is largely Republican, and that the governor did not attend all the sessions at which the money was granted.

Trovatten today said that the statement was an error of one of his subordinates who assembled the letter and was not an attempt to "grab the spotlight for the agriculture department or governor's office."

PURSUERS CLOSE IN ON CRAZY TRAPPER NEAR U. S. BOUNDARY

SHOULD HE REACH BORDER, 'MOUNTIES' WILL NOT CROSS INTO UNITED STATES

Aklavik, N. W. T., Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—In his desperate dash towards the boundary of Alaska, beyond which he hopes to find temporary shelter from the relentless pursuit of Canadian police officers, Albert O. Johnson, hermit of the Rat river country, is now hiking straight west. Royal Canadian mounted police who want him for the killing of a constable, are right on his heels.

Despite a blizzard which raged over northern Yukon Monday, the police posse managed to keep on the wild trapper's trail. Pierre House, isolated trading post in Yukon, is now the headquarters of the pursuers, and Captain W. R. "Wop" May, who is totting supplies in by airplane, flew there on Tuesday from Aklavik. On his return he reported the police were gaining on the fugitive, who was then some 30 miles southwest of the post.

Canadian police would not cross into the United States territory should Johnson reach the border and in the bleak, unpopulated mountains of northern Alaska he might be safe for many months before United States authorities could reach him.

PROTESTS NAMING OF CARDOZO TO BENCH

Washington, Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—William H. Anderson of New York, general secretary of the American Protestant Alliance, has telegraphed Chairman Norris of the Senate judiciary committee protesting the nomination of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo to the supreme court. Anderson formerly was superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League.

He asked an opportunity to appear before the committee in opposition to Cardozo.

Norris said today the telegram would be presented to the committee and that he would appoint a sub-committee to hear Anderson. Confirmation of Cardozo is not expected to be delayed by Anderson's protest.

Chairman Norris of the senate judiciary committee appointed a subcommittee of three senators to consider the nomination of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York to the United States supreme court. The committee decided to hold open hearings Friday. The subcommittee appointed by Norris consists of Senators Robinson, repn., Ind.; Schall, repn., Minn., and Ashurst, dem., Arizona.

SEABURY STAMPS STORY N. Y. SHERIFF'S HUGE BANK DEPOSITS 'COCK BULL STORY'

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—Samuel Seabury today stamped Thomas M. Farley's "magic tin box story" by which the New York county sheriff had explained his huge bank deposits as "a cock and bull story to relieve him from an embarrassing situation."

In hearings last year before the Hofstadter investigating committee, the sheriff had explained deposits of large sums of money by saying "they come out of my little tin box I kept at home."

The "tin box" phase of Sheriff Farley's trial before Governor Roosevelt on charges preferred by Seabury provided an anticipated sensation when Roosevelt plunged directly into Farley's personal finances at the opening of the second day of the executive hearing.

Seabury told the governor that Farley's explanations regarding more than $350,000 he banked during three years of office holding were "an insult to your intelligence, as they were to the Hofstadter committees."

Farley, he said, played "battledore" and shuttlecock with deposits between the tin box and his bank account.

Replying to Seabury, Kieffried Hartman, Farley's counsel, retorted that "it is a common practice to keep money hidden at home."

"Why some people won't even take paper money," he shouted, "and one client of mine tells me he has more than $300,000 in a trunk at home."

Rare Coffees from Central America

Twice the Richness... Twice the Flavor

(EWING GALLOWAY)
From Lofty Mountain Plantations Mules Carry These Coffees to Town.

Coffees That Experts Concede Are Not Duplicated Anywhere Else in the World

HAVE you tasted it yet? This rare flavor in coffee that people everywhere are talking about.

It comes from tiny mountain districts along the West Coast of Central America. A region where Nature produces coffees that, experts concede, are not duplicated anywhere else in the world. Coffees with a rare tang and mellow, rich body that spoils your taste for ordinary kinds. Coffees that are never "flat," or thin, or bitter. Coffees from which Nature leaves out the "rough" offensive oils.

Introduced by Folger
Years ago this coffee was first served in the famous Bohemian restaurants of San Francisco where it was introduced by Folger. Travelers tasting it there were captivated by its unusual flavor. Flavor produced by a peculiar combination of rich volcanic soil, altitude, sun's rays and tropic rainfall—that is found nowhere else in the world.

The Folger Test
Would you like to see for yourself just how different these coffees are—in richness and in flavor? Here's a test that is as simple as it is fair.

Tomorrow morning drink Folger's. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. In a morning or two you will decidedly favor one or the other; the best coffee wins. That's fair, isn't it?

When you put dough in the oven . . . it should be two-thirds leavened

THE rising that takes place in the heat of the oven is not enough to assure perfect results in baking. As a matter of fact, when too much leavening is left for oven heat to take care of, cakes and hot breads are heavy and soggy.

For perfect results, there is a right amount of leavening which should take place in the mixing and another right amount which should take place in the oven. Baking experts and scientists know these amounts to be two-thirds in the mixing and one-third in the oven. Leavening in this perfect proportion is called two-to-one leavening.

You can get two-to-one leavening only with a pure, all-phosphate powder such as Rumford. And with Rumford you get the added protection of 52 laboratory tests made during its production. These tests make absolutely certain that Rumford's leavening action is always correct, always "two-to-one," and gives perfect results.

You owe it to your family to give them the benefit of Rumford's healthful content of calcium and phosphates. Get Rumford today from your grocer.

A NEW DANGER—

A man who has not had any kind of job for more than a year wrote a letter to a middle-western newspaper the other day. After telling of his plight he remarked:

"When you see your last few dollars going, no hope of work, not a friend who gives a damn, your thoughts are not pleasant and you become bitter. It's this bitterness and hate that terrify me more than financial embarrassment."

That brief sentence goes about as nearly to the heart of the matter as any one sentence could. It illuminates, that is, the most dismaying part of the entire depression.

It is never easy to see what is going on under our noses. Any highly significant change in the emotional background of the ordinary man is usually recognizable only after it has taken place. But it is beginning to become evident that unless present conditions change shortly, we in the United States shall have built up a class comparable to the proletariat of Europe; a class that sticks to the bottom rung of the ladder, has no hope of rising any higher and looks with envy, suspicion and enmity on those above it.

Heretofore, we have not had such a class. The old American tradition—and it is one of the finest traditions ever given to any people—has always been strong, even at the bottom of the heap. Hope was always a common possession of every American. Everyone felt that the freedom and equality of opportunity about which we talk so much were more than empty dreams.

But now the inexorable force of events is beginning to produce a change. The bitterness and hate that this man speaks of are beginning to spread; and they are spreading because the old tradition is losing its force.

There is the real danger that the depression has brought us. It is a worse thing to contemplate even than the hunger and cold and privation that are the lot of so many. We must check it—by showing a greater readiness to help those who need help, by making more determined efforts to protect those who need protection. If we fail, we shall have infinite cause to regret it.

A DUTY WE OVERLOOK—

Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York, addressing an audience of churchmen recently, expressed regret that church and community work for boys often ends when the youngsters reach the age of 16, or thereabouts.

"I wish," he said, "that the churches of all denominations would do more to try to direct the boys of the city to wholesome recreation. The Boy Scout troops often seem to lose the boy after he is 16, and it is then that he falls into bad company."

There is a whole lot of truth in this; for the lad of 16 very often finds himself a misfit, and the two or three-year period that he begins at that age can be extremely trying and dangerous.

At 16 he is no longer—in his own eyes, at least—a boy; he is entering manhood, and he is desperately anxious to do the things that men do. But he has not quite got there, as yet. The adult world still looks on him as an unlicked cub, and grown-ups who will treat him as a grown-up are few and far between.

So, feeling himself lost between two worlds, he is apt to have a rather hard time. He starts drifting, and the first group that takes a real interest in him, and treats him as a more or less mature individual capable of making his own choices, is likely to win his allegiance permanently.

And it is right at this point that one of modern society's most terrible bits of wastage comes in. The lad from an underprivileged neighborhood will drift into some uncouth places before he gets his bearings, and if his luck happens to be out he will take root in one or another of them.

So, a little later on, we have another youthful gunman, or another furtive-eyed young loafer with a shady present and a dubious future, or another pool-room hanger-on ready to get into any kind of trouble that offers itself.

We have discovered, in recent years, that children must be given a chance to get wholesome recreation. But we have not yet learned that this guidance must extend through the first part of young manhood. Commissioner Mulrooney has touched on a point that deserves a lot more thought than we have given it.

STILL WORSE THAN WAR—

About a year ago the fact that more persons were killed in automobile accidents during an 18-month period than were killed in the A. E. F. in the World War, was extensively commented upon. Now, according to a booklet issued by the Travelers Insurance Company, automobile accidents are still worse than war. During 18 months of the World War, 50,510 American soldiers were killed in action or died of wounds, and 182,674 were wounded, not mortally. In the 18 months ending December 31, 1931, 53,650 people were killed in automobile accidents and 1,576,840 were injured.

The Travelers' booklet emphasizes some information that every motorist and pedestrian should know. During 1931 deaths increased 3.3 per cent over 1930, in spite of a reduction in the total number of accidents. Severe injuries likewise increased, despite a reduction in the total number of persons injured. This apparent contradiction is laid to the increasing speed with which we drive. Cutting in, violation of the right-of-way laws, driving on the wrong side of the road, skidding and driving off the roadway were likewise responsible for many deaths.

More than 42 per cent of deaths were caused when a car struck a pedestrian. Collisions with fixed objects accounted for 12.1 per cent and collisions with other cars, 24.9 per cent. In the case of injuries, 53.1 per cent occurred when cars struck each other and 29.8 per cent when they struck pedestrians.

These facts are of immense value to the thoughtful motorist. They show the primary causes of accidents and, consequently, suggest means of eliminating them. Drastic steps must be taken if we are to lower the horrible and steadily increasing toll of traffic deaths and injuries.

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, who works by day as a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her elder sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE. Irresponsible Molly has long ago squandered the fortune left by her English husband and the two girls support the family. Molly foolishly spends money saved to pay the rent. Ellen decides to work at night as a dance hall hostess until the sum is made up. She goes to Dreamland and interviews JACOB SALOMON who offers her a job on condition that she supply her own evening dresses. She has no evening dress.

STEVEN BARCLAY, Ellen's employer, sees her crying and asks her to come to his office. When she tells him the situation he offers to give her a dress. She proudly refuses. He then lends her one of the dresses worn by the store models. Ellen is half-pleased, half-frightened by Barclay's obvious interest in her. She dines with him and he drives her to Dreamland where he leaves her. Salomon introduces her to the other hostesses. Ellen hates the cheapness of Dreamland. Two of the hostesses, TONY and ANISE, wait for her to dress.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

ELLEN sensed the antagonism of the two girls. She ignored it. Tony, bright-eyed, small and brunet, was barely covered by a wisp of chiffon which clearly revealed her breasts and young, unformed legs. Her sigh of admiration, a purely feminine sigh, turned swiftly to envy as feminine.

"The queen herself," she giggled. "And in a dress from Chantel or I'll eat my favorite lipstick."

The youngster jumped to her feet, ran across the room and before Ellen understood her purpose she had pulled down the back of the dress to examine the label.

"It is a Chantel," she confirmed in an awed tone. And to Ellen "How come you wear a dress from Chantel to dance in a dump like this?"

Ellen felt like tearing off the dress and stamping on it. She was angry and humiliated.

"Go away," she fiercely addressed Tony. "Go away and let me alone. And take your hands off my dress!"

"Aw, I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings," apologized Tony, with a contrite, distressed little laugh. "Honest I'm sorry. Don't be sore, I was only fooling. You look swell."

Anise was still sulky and agitated when the three girls walked into the ballroom. But Tony had forgotten completely that she had ever been jealous of Ellen and was eagerly babbling out amazingly sophisticated advice and instructions.

THE hostesses sat at empty tables, one girl to a table, and waited for men to ask them to dance. Most of the girls had regular patrons. Tony's instructions dealt in part with methods for "cinching regulars." These men would buy a whole string of tickets for the privilege of dancing with a particular girl for an hour or so. After each of the short dances—the fastest couples barely managed three turns of the room before the orchestra stopped—the girl would gravely detach one of the tickets from the long string proffered by her escort.

Ellen took a table close to Tony's. But Tony was gone almost immediately, away like a green flash in the arms of a tall youth.

Ellen sat alone for some time. The music, once she became accustomed to its loudness, made her want to dance.

A great many of the men who stood around the walls watching the dancers or waiting their turn with Sunny or Anise or Tony or Maybelle glanced toward her but no one approached. Ellen's very beauty and air of cool aloofness intimidated them. At last a bold spirit sought out Salomon and came over for an introduction. As she acknowledged the introduction Ellen realized there were worse things than sitting alone at a table while others danced.

The two young people were almost alone on the floor.

One of them was dancing with Joseph K. Landis. He was clumsy. He was crude. He held her so tightly that she could hardly breathe. He pressed his damp face against her cool cheek no matter how insistently she sought to avoid the juxtaposition. And all the time he babbled in her ear inane compliments.

"Where've you been all my life, little one? At home taking care of the kids? I thought so. A pretty little thing like you should have a better fate. Take me for instance—go right ahead and take me. I'll see you don't get trampled in the rush."

"You're holding me too tightly," she said furiously.

"Naughty, naughty! You're not supposed to talk. I can hold you tighter than this. See?"

He closed his arms around her, moved his face forward and kissed her squarely on the lips. Ellen struggled free, slapped him across the mouth and was off the floor and back at her table before Joseph K. Landis thoroughly understood what had happened.

JACOB SALOMON was very angry. He stood before Ellen's table, his feet wide apart, his arms gestulating, as he explained in detail how angry he was.

"I don't care if he did try to kiss you," he snapped. "That was no reason for socking him. You gotta treat patrons decent. Kid 'em along, give 'em a good time. That's what you're here for, young woman."

Ellen was angry, too. "I came here to dance, Mr. Salomon, not to be mauled," she retorted, her eyes flashing, her lips pale with anger. "He didn't try to kiss me. He did kiss me."

She got up from the table and had begun to say that Salomon could find another girl to take her place, one more amenable to his ideas, when she saw that there was a small disturbance near the door.

Three men had entered and were grouped near the ticket booth. The two in evening clothes plainly wished to leave but the third, the one in flannels, just as plainly wished to stay. Suddenly Ellen saw him detach himself from his companions and push his way toward the spot where she and Salomon stood. He came straight across the crowded floor, regardless of the dancers annoyed by his transit.

He was a young man of 26 or 27 with a countenance in which eagerness was oddly mixed with something almost like boredom. His hair was thick and red. Ellen had a strange feeling that she would at ways remember his progress across the floor, that it would remain forever fixed in her mind, unchangeable.

She continued talking to Salomon, who had his back to the newcomer, but she was hardly conscious of what she said. While she talked she was aware that all her attention was fixed upon that figure approaching and that she was asking herself the cause of the contradictions in his face, deciding if she was to the sulky, bored mouth beneath such eager eyes. Were they blue or gray?

Jacob Salomon did not observe the young man until he was within a few steps of them. But he understood immediately.

"You're right," he muttered, half under his breath. "You should've socked him. Be more careful this time. This bird's class or I miss my guess."

Ellen stepped backward, all thought of leaving Dreamland gone.

She had the strangest feeling that she wanted to prolong the moment of waiting. She was like a child on Christmas morning hesitating at the stairway-head before plunging down to the glittering tree. She saw Salomon speak to the young man, saw the two turn toward her. Salomon introduced her and waited for the newcomer to supply his own name. Ellen, with her new and sharpened perceptions, felt that the young man hesitated as he said that he was Larry Smith. She could not be certain. She was certain that his eyes were gray, not blue.

THE orchestra swung into a waltz. Most of the couples were flocking from the floor. Ellen saw them, heard them, even identified some of the girls, but all this served only as a dim and unreal background for the man who stood before her.

He asked her to dance. With that same strange feeling that all of this had been preordained, that all this was something that she would never forget, she stepped into his arms.

She fancied that she was trembling. She was sure that if she tried to speak she would find that she had lost her voice. The two tall beautiful young people were almost alone on the floor. They had not spoken since they started dancing. As effortless as shadows they drifted along to the measures of the lightly melancholy tune.

"I haven't any tickets," the young man spoke at last and abruptly. Absurdly he repeated, "I haven't any tickets."

He guided her to the ticket booth. Even as they reached the knot of perspiring men who were supplying themselves with fresh tickets, the dance was done. Ellen withdrew a few paces, embarrassed, shy, confused.

She was obsessed with a desire to learn the name of the waltz the orchestra had played. As she waited for her partner nothing seemed to matter in the world save that she should know the name of that waltz. Without thinking what she was doing she thumped the violin player between the shoulder blades. He was tuning his instrument but he stopped to ask indignantly what she thought she was doing.

"What waltz were you playing? What waltz were you playing?"

"Waltz Romantic." Next time look out who you punch."

Ellen laughed joyously and with a disgusted glance at her, he began to pick at his strings again. A moment later the lights went out—all except a round moon over the orchestra.

As the room filled with misty, bluish light and the piano began to tinkle, the dancers crowded to the floor. Ellen was wildly impatient to be dancing. What if Larry Smith were unable to find her? Had he noticed that she had withdrawn? She turned to see him coming toward her through the bluish dusk. As he drew near she thought that she had never been so happy in her life.

Thoughts for Lent

"There Shined About Him Light"
(Read Acts 9:1-9.)

The road to Damascus is one of the world's bleakest roads. It is the way that men travel who are bent on persecution. It is the way of all inquisitions, of all bigotry, of all violent crusades. But even on that dark roadway the Light shines through! Christ comes even to those who breathe out threatenings and slaughter. As we press on fiercely toward Damascus to visit punishment upon those whom we despise, Christ Himself is likely to stop us on the way and cast us to the ground. His Light may shine around us, and we may hear Him say, "Why persecutest thou me?" Even through the opaque cloud of our mistaken zeal the Radiance can penetrate.

Prayer: O Thou who canst forgive us all our sins, and whose mercy is more wide than all the seas, be patient with us, we beseech Thee, when we deal ungenerally with any of Thy children. May the Light of Thy loving kindness shine in our clouded hearts. Relieve our souls of the fierce strains which anger puts upon them. Grant, we pray, that when wrath shall have darkened our minds, the Radiance of Thy Presence through Jesus Christ may restore to us the vision of Thy Love. Amen.

ceived their instructions on "Chick Rearing," which was the first lesson of their poultry project. On account of bad weather and sickness many members were absent. Six families reported a total of 916 hens, and an average of 406.2 eggs daily. One member reported that he had fed his flock at 7c per dozen eggs, the rest was profit. A poultryman at the meeting stated that the sandy soils in that locality did not breed disease like the heavy soils in other places.

CLUBS INTERESTED IN FARM BUREAU POULTRY PROJECT IN FIRST MEETS

The Gilbert Lake Poultry Club met at the home of Mrs. J. W. Hillard last week. A good attendance was had in spite of the bad weather. Following the noon lunch the meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. C. Skilling. The members all sang the farm bureau song, followed by the lesson taught by the two leaders, Mrs. A. N. Lovsted and Mrs. John Gibson.

One of the outstanding features was Mrs. Holmes telling about the raising of baby chicks last year. Out of 1144 chicks, she lost only 12 the first three weeks. She feeds them Gold Medal feeds and buttermilk.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. John Holmes, March 10, with Mrs. Milton and Clarence Holmes assisting hostesses.

The Poultry Project members of Center United No. 2 received their first instructions last week from their leaders, Mrs. T. H. Easton and Mrs. T. B. Howe. Although the weather was very cold, sixteen people attended, two members being absent. A paper brooding house and feed demonstration were the home demonstrations started. A trough and roosting rack were the demonstrations finished, and the miniature wood roosting rack was pronounced O. K. by all. The group composed a song to the tune of "Smiles" which is as follows:

"There are hens that make us happy
There are hens that make us sad,
But the hens that bring us in our profits
Are the ones we all would like to have."

With the knowledge of our Poultry Project,
A bright future is all holds in store
Help us fill our egg cases and our pockets
Till we can't wish for anything more.

The Pine Center Poultry Club met last week at the home of Mrs. John L. Schommer with an attendance of nine members. The subject was "Chick Rearing" and was taught by their two leaders, Mrs. Ernest Brand and Mrs. John L. Schommer. The group looked over a nice flock of Rhode Island Red chickens and a nice brooder house.

TEMPLETON, SMITH, HEIKKINEN APPEAR AS TOURNEY TIMBER

GERRY WYGLE SHOWS BEST FORM OF YEAR; SWANSON GREAT UNDER CAGE

Brainerd's Warriors looked great in combination scoring plays and defense last night here to win in a walk over Little Falls high, 41-7.

By virtue of their play and by former performers, three of Brainerd's reserves who saw action during the major part of the contest, virtually established themselves as tournament team timber.

On the basis of play and from the season's play to date, Templeton, Smith and Heikkinen are going to be difficult to keep off the squad that carries Brainerd's colors in the district tournament here, March 4, 5.

The three work well in combination play with the veterans. Each has his own particular valuable asset. The reserves are a scrappy lot with plenty of punch, class and speed. Templeton would be even a stronger asset to the team than he is now if he could break himself of a tendency to travel with the ball. Bill Smith, as he further demonstrated last night, takes advantage of every opportunity afforded him. He broke up several passes of the Falls and on two of these occasions raced away with the ball to score.

Heikkinen has much in his favor. Sturdy on defense, agile on offense, heady and a natural athlete's determination and ability he is a valuable player for the squad.

Gerry Wygle flashed through to show his best form of the season. Larson virtually has clinched a place on the tournament squad as a regular guard. His qualifications as a basketball guard, long distance marksman speak for themselves. As for Swanson, the tall forward and substitute center was a dead shot under the cage, sinking six from close range in the last half.

Foster and Bob Wygle were used for only a short stretch, just to warm up. Both regulars have been handicapped the past two weeks with injury and sickness. They should reach their full stride again in the Brainerd-Crosby-Itasca game on the range, Friday, Feb. 26.

All the players will again see action in the Wadena game here Friday night, Feb. 19.

It was apparent at the outset of the game that Little Falls would attempt to slow up the game and disrupt the Brainerd defense but this strategy failed. Little Falls grabbed the opening tipoff of the game and carried the ball into their own territory. Brainerd players remained firm in their zone defense overcoming a strong desire to enter the opposing team's floor and recover the ball. After passing the ball around in a circle for nearly a minute Little Falls lost the ball on travelling. After the toss in Gerry Wygle tipped the ball in on a short loop shot. After that the Falls team had a difficult time in attempting to gain the ball and discarded its stall strategy. Brainerd piled up a 24-6 lead at the half and in the second half permitted the visitors only one foul goal.

Towards the close of the game injecting Dahl for Foster, White for Brainerd made substitutions freely. Larson, Dybvik for Swanson and Gabiou for Heikkinen.

Little Falls' severe defeat is partially accounted for by their lack of practice the last two weeks due to the illness and death of Donald Jackson, star guard. Jackson's death from typhoid fever administered a severe jolt to his teammates who looked upon him as a key man in their race for district honors.

Captains Notre Dame

South Benl, Ind., Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—Paul Host, LaCrosse, Wis., will captain Notre Dame's 1932 football squad, players determined at the annual meeting here last night. Following his election to the post, monograms were awarded last year's team.

The Wisconsin player's chief opponent in the election for captain was another end, Ed Hosky. Several ballots were needed to determine a majority. Host is a Junior at Notre Dame.

SEE NEW FOOTBALL RULES AS PROTECTION TO PLAYERS BUT GRIEF FOR OFFICIALS

New York, Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—While the new football rule changes undoubtedly will protect players and not bother spectators, they may bring plenty of grief to field officials.

Coaches and football authorities throughout the nation have overwhelmingly lauded the most drastic set of rule changes since 1906, but before their paen of praise dies down, a minor chorus of criticism can be expected.

Already Sam Willaman, coach of Ohio State is warning that the rule changes and block rule "will cause officials more worries."

Francis Wallace, football analyst on the New York Daily News, seconds Willaman's warning and adds that the new method of calling a "dead" will make more work for already overburdened officials.

The blocking and tackling rule provides it will be legal for the tackler to leave his feet only at the instant that he makes contact with his opponent. Even the most ardent admirer of the new rules admit this will result in many hair-line decisions.

Five yards, at times, is well worth arguing about.

Bill Ingram, coach at the university of California, was an outspoken critic of the changes. He said "there is no occasion for any rule change. As it is, the game is being hurt by the changes."

"Hunk" Anderson, at Notre Dame, said the rule prohibiting use of arms and forearms on an opposing player's head, neck or shoulders places a premium on the larger players and lessens the value of a small player who relies more on the strength in his arms than on his body in defensive line play.

Glen Thistlethwaite, University of Wisconsin: abolishing the flying tackle and block will eliminate much clipping and will be a very good rule but it will not eliminate injuries.

Dick Hadley, Northwestern university: no doubt most changes were made in hope of cutting down the chances of injuries. I fail to see where the other rules will better the game.

Johnston to Confer With Dempsey for Eastern Bout

New York, February 17.—(U. P.)—Jimmy Johnstone, manager of boxing at Madison Square Garden, was scheduled to go to Chicago today "possibly by airplane" to watch Jack Dempsey during his four-round exhibition with King Levinsky Thursday night.

If Dempsey wins, Johnstone said he probably would discuss a bout at Yankee Stadium this summer, probably against Ernie Schaaf, Steve Kamas, Max Baer or Charley Ritzlaff.

Johnson will be accompanied by Joe Jacobs, Max Schmeeling's manager.

CITY HOCKEY STARS TO PLAY NIGHT GAME AT AITKIN THURSDAY

BRAINERD RED DEVILS TO FIGHT FOR SEVENTH STRAIGHT WIN THIS SEASON

The Brainerd Red Devils hockey team journeys to Aitkin Thursday to play that town's team in a night game.

The Red Devils have won six games this season and lost none. They are determined to continue their winning streak.

Aitkin has a newly organized set and its strength has not been demonstrated in speedy competition. The Brainerd squad is somewhat weakened with the loss of Creger, star defense, who will be out of the game with an injured leg.

Those who will make the trip are: Carlson, manager; Fox, goalie; Gabiou, C.; McIntosh, rw.; Graff, lw.; Rafstad, ld.; Greenier, rd.; spares: Hagstad, c.; Fogelstrom, wing; Cheney, wing; H. Graff, and Flansburg, defense.

Record Hunters Seek New Marks in Indoor Games

New York, Feb. 17.—(U.P.)—An even half-dozen of America's outstanding record hunters will seek new world marks tonight at the sixty-fourth annual indoor games of the New York A. C. at Madison Square Garden.

Some 14,000 devotees will crowd into the Garden, attracted largely by this brilliant sextette whose names illuminate the athletic world like a battery of beaming floodlights: Venzke, Spitz, Sexton, Toppino, Brown and Beard.

Gene Venzke, smooth-striding lad from Boyertown, Pa., who lowered the world's indoor mile record to 4:11 1-5 at the recent Millrose games, heads entries in the Baxter mile, feature event.

One of his opponents is Leo Leonard, New York A. C. star who finished 10 yards behind Venzke in their Millrose meeting.

The grass-green emerald is found in an almost inaccessible locality in the Salzburg Alps.
